Going Ahead.

I hear the far-off voyager's horn,
I see the Yankee trail—
His foot is on every mountain pass,
On every stream his sail.

He's whistling round St. Mary's Falls,
Upon the forest ridge,
He's leaving on the pictured rocks
His froth tobacco-stain.

I hear the muffled in the miles,
The a-wake in the dell,
The clamor from the Indian lodge,
The Jew's chapel bell.

I see the swarthy trapper come
From Mississippi's springs,
And war-chiefs with their painted brows,
And crests of eagles' wings.

Behind the square's light birth canoe,
The steamer smokes and raves,
And city lights are straked for sale
Above old Indian graves.

By forest, lake, and waterfall,
I see the pedlar's show,
The mighty mingling with the mean,
The lofty with the low.

I hear the tread of pioneers
Of nations yet to be,
The first low wash of waves where soon
Shall roll a human sea.

The rudiments of empire here
Are plastic yet and warm;
The chaos of a mighty world
Is rounding into form.

Each race and jostling fragment soon
In fitting place shall find
The raw material of a State,
Its muscle and its mind.

The Western—still the star which leads
The New World in its train,
Has tipped with fire the icy spears
Of many a mountain chain.

The snowy comes of Oregon
Are kindled in its way;
And California's golden sands
Glean brighter to its ray.

—Whitney.

VARIETY.

A popular author exclaims: "What a pity some quadrupeds can't talk." We are rather disposed to say, "What a pity some bipeds can't."

Suwaroff, even in peace, always slept fully armed, boots and all. "When I was lazy," said he, "and wanted to enjoy a comfortable sleep, I usually took off one spur."

"There goes a man," said a friend to another, "who is worth his hundred thousand dollars." "Yes," quietly said the other, looking after the rich man, "and that is all he is worth."

"Harry you ought to be ashamed to throw away bread like that. You may want it some day." "Well, mother, would I stand any better chance of getting it then, should I eat it up now?"

A man getting out of an omnibus a few days ago, made use of two rows of knees as banisters to steady himself, at which the ladies took offense, and one of them cried aloud, "a perfect savage!" "True," said a witty printer who left the case, studied physics and became a physician, gave as his reason for doing so that in printing, all the faults are exposed to the eye, but in physics they are buried with the patient.

As an evening party a very elderly lady was dancing with a young partner. A stranger approached her, who was looking on, and said: "Pray, sir, can you tell me who is the young gentleman dancing with that very elderly lady?" "One of the Humane Society, I should think," replied the elderly lady.

"The times are so hard I can hardly manage to keep my nose above water," said a husband the other day to his wife, who was importuning him for a new dress. "No," she replied, with some asperity, "but you manage to keep it above water and water every one else."

Madame de Staël said, "If it were not for my respect for human opinion, I would not open my window to see the Bay of Naples for the first time; while I would go five hundred leagues to talk with a man of genius whom I had not seen."

The strength of a city or nation, is in its honest, industrious working men, who perform manual labor under the inspiration of an intelligent mind. Any policy which ignores this class, or which even undervalues them, cannot be the policy that will build up a healthy, vigorous commonwealth.

"How dat, Sambo? You says you was at the battle of Bull Run? When I sees you at New York on de same night?" "Yes, Julius, I was for sartain. Yer see, our colonel says he, 'Boys, strike for yer country and yer homes!' We ought to take it kind, looking down hill, with an expression about half tickled and half scared. After the pop is over, if yure luvyer wants two kiss you, I don't think I would say yes or no, but let the thing kind of take its own course. There is one thing I have always stuck to, and that is, give me long courtships and short engagements."

A SAILOR'S LOVE OF FAIR PLAY.—In a shipyard the other day, a tar from a man-of-war was observed watching two men dragging a seven-foot cross-cut saw through a huge oak log. The saw was dull, the log very tough, and there they went, see-saw, see-saw; pull, push; pull, push. Jack studied the matter over a while, until he came to the conclusion that they were pulling to see who could get the saw, and so one was an immense big chap while the other was a little fellow, he decided to see fair play; so giving the big one a blow under the ear that cased him, he jerked the saw out of the log, and giving it to the small one, he sang out, "now run, you beggar!"

ECONOMY IN PANTALOONS.—A young but prudent mother, on the important occasion of making her little boy his first pair of colored trousers, conceived the idea that it would be more economical to make them of the same dimensions behind and before, so that they might be changed about and wear evenly—and so she fashioned them. Their effect when donned by the little victim was ludicrous in the extreme. Papa, at first sight of the buggy garments as "searfully and wonderfully made," burst into a roar of laughter, and exclaimed, "Oh, my dear, how could you have the heart to do it? Why, the poor little fellow won't know whether he is going to school or coming home."
